

Western Sydney Stadium

Project update – December 2018

The Western Sydney Stadium team wishes everyone a safe and happy holiday period. Western Sydney Stadium is getting closer to completion and on track to be open in April 2019.

Western Sydney Stadium to be called 'Bankwest Stadium'

The project reached an important milestone this month, with the NSW Government and Bankwest announcing a seven-year partnership for naming rights of the new stadium. Bankwest Managing Director Rowan Munchenberg said Bankwest was thrilled to support this critical piece of community infrastructure in the vibrant, diverse and growing corridor of Western Sydney.

Construction Progress

It's been an exciting few months at Western Sydney Stadium. Around 400 people contribute to the works on site everyday. Construction is on track to be finished by the end of March 2019.

What's been happening on site:

- All structural work is now complete and roof fabric will be finished before the end of the year
- Seat installation started in mid-October and 15,000 seats have already been installed
- Fit out works are continuing with food and beverage outlets being progressively finished
- Flooring and joinery install is well underway
- External precinct works and commissioning activities have now commenced.

What's happening next?

Work over the next three months will focus on getting the stadium ready for operations. Work will include:

- Completing the pitch system and installing the turf
- Landscaping the external precinct
- Completing the installation of seating
- Finishing the internal fit out.

When the stadium is complete, it will be handed over to Venues NSW and VenuesLive for a short testing and commissioning phase ahead of the first game to be played on 22 April 2019.

Work will continue throughout the holiday season but no work will be carried out on public holidays.
